PROFESSIONAL SUMMARY

Self-motivated with passion to learn I always look for a challenging and requiring deep immersion tasks. Working with them I search for the best solution by breaking down the problem into its main constituents and as a result by going through each of them I find the most optimized solution in terms of cost and time.

I started my path in gamedev when I was 17. I was searching around the internet for something to read about programming and stumbled upon a book about how to develop games in Adobe Flash. Since then it has appeared as one of the first item in my list of hobbies. i.e. game development, not development in Flash (it is old).

For many years I have been obtaining a lot of experience and knowledge in software development especially related to gamedev branch via self-learning, working as a freelancer and in a company as a member of an international game development team.
